The global healthy snacks market is projected to reach $152 billion by 2030. Hemp-based food is witnessing rapid growth, especially in North America and Europe. With increasing acceptance of hemp in India and abroad, this is the perfect moment to introduce hemp chips and related snacks.

Competitor Analysis

While healthy snacking is a crowded market, hemp-based snacks are still an untapped niche. Competitors in India focus mostly on quinoa chips, ragi snacks, and protein bars. Globally, brands like Evo Hemp (US) and Planet Superfood (EU) are gaining traction. Hempster Chef’s USP is blending hemp with quirky flavors and chef-driven recipes.

Criticism & Counter Strategy

Potential Criticisms: - Hemp = Drugs misconception - Taste concerns (earthy flavor) - Price sensitivity in mass markets Counter Strategy: - Educational branding: Highlighting 'Zero THC, 100% Nutrition' - Flavor innovation: Fusion spices + chef-backed taste tests - Premium + affordable SKUs to serve multiple markets

Branding & Mascot

Hempster Chef is represented by a quirky, friendly mascot – a hemp leaf turned chef. This fun personality makes the brand approachable, youthful, and memorable. The logo and visual identity are designed for both global and Indian audiences.
